USAI LIGHTING OPENS “COLLABORATORY” IN NEW YORK’S SOHO DISTRICT

USAI Lighting has opened the “USAI Lighting Collaboratory,” a 3,200-square-foot pop-up space in the heart of New York’s Soho district, where visitors can experience the newest developments and capabilities of LEDs. They will learn how lighting today’s interiors has evolved into a sophisticated science as well as art form that impact human performance and well-being.

This “adult science museum” incorporates interactive displays that allow each guest to explore the infinite possibilities of “Personalized Lighting.” Open through 2015, the “USAI Lighting Collaboratory” will also serve as an event space, with USAI hosting CEU courses, panel discussions and other programming for the architecture and design community and public.

To make an appointment to tour the space, email Margaux Caniato at margauxc@vpcpartners.com.
